

Game Time

It was six on the clock. Jane and Grace were having a playdate.

"I think it is time to play a game," said Grace.

"What should we play?" asked Jane. "I like to play tic-tac-toe. Do you want to have a game of tic-tac-toe?"

"That's fine," said Grace. "

But I made a cute game for us to play. It is a race! Here are the rules. Use the dice to move your cube. I will move my cube, too. Then we can see who gets to the end of the lane first."

Jane said, "That is fun. I hope I win! Is there a prize?"

"Nope," said Grace. We just have a good time while we trade turns."

"Do we have time to play both games?" asked Grace.

"Yes, Jane!" Grace said. "I left a note that I will be home at nine. We can play your game, then play mine and still have time for cake!"
